USA Freedom Corps website details how to help Hurricane Katrina victims

HEIDELBERG, Germany—The aftermath of Hurricane Katrina has created one of the largest humanitarian crises the United States has ever seen. Tens of thousands of people have been displaced from their homes and many escaped only with the clothes on their backs.

USA Freedom Corps, a coordinating council at the White House, has a website that details the very latest information on Hurricane Katrina relief and recovery efforts.

The website, www.usafreedomcorps.gov, details how individuals can help the hurricane victims through donations or volunteering.
